- intro
- This week we are talking about the most popular recent unsolved cases in Indiana, The Snapchat murders. This had happened in delphi india Let's get into some background information

- The two eighth-graders Liberty German also known as libby and Abigail williams also known as abby on Monday February 13, 2017, just last year, had a day off of school for a snow make up day and were dropped off around 1 p.m. to walk along the Monon High Bridge trails. A pretty normal day .They'd arranged to meet relatives at the start of the trail about an hour or 2 after they arrived.
- Libby posted a Snapchat photo of best friend Abby walking across the railroad shortly before 2:15 p.m., which lead some media outlets to dub this case the "Snapchat Murders." Soon after posting the photo, investigators believe the girls were approached by a man, presumed to be a stranger, who then went on to kill them. In fact, Libby, who may have sensed danger, recorded a snippet of audio on her cellphone of the man speaking the words "down the hill."
- (audio)
- She also snapped a photo of the suspect; though it turned out blurry, witnesses also gave description and it was enough to help police draft a composite sketch, There has been speculation that Libby also recorded a video, but police have not released it.
- autopsies were performed on both girls, neither police nor the FBI has released the cause of death of either girl, or information about what, exactly, happened to them that afternoon. In fact, officials have still only released three key pieces of information related to the case: Libby's blurry photo of the suspect, who was seen walking with his head down, wearing jeans, a blue jacket, a hat and a brown hoodie. The police also released Libby's audio snippet of the man. They have more audio recordings as well, but Indiana State Police say

- Officials are looking for a white man who is between 5 feet 6 inches and 5 feet 10 inches with reddish-brown hair.
- DNA evidence has reportedly been collected from the scene of the murder, though it's unclear exactly what that evidence consists of.
- The lack of information released about the case has caused some people to speculate that the case is going cold, but investigators claim that isn't true.
- In fact, there have been 30,000 leads in the case—just nothing that's led to the girls' killer.
- A press conference with the Indiana police has said

- commentary

- One suspect is a man named Daniel Nations. He was dragged into the headlines last year when he was identified as a “person of interest” in the murders.
- In September, he was arrested in Colorado Springs near a trail where a hiker had been murdered recently; according to The Indy Channel, “the car he and his wife were driving matched one belonging to a man who threatened several hikers with a hatchet.” (A hatchet was reportedly found in the car as well.) Daniel was not charged in the hiker murder

- Commentary

- In May, Nations pleaded guilty to a felony charge for failing to register as a sex or violent offender, but that charge has nothing to do with the Delphi investigation, and any link between Nations and the girls' murders is unclear. Nations was put on probation, but Indiana State Police Superintendent Doug Carter says “He’s not a person that we care a whole lot about at this moment in time.”

- If you have any information about the murders, please contact the Delphi Homicide Investigation Tip Line at (844) 459-5786, or the Indiana State Police at (800) 382-7537,
- Information can be reported anonymously; however, the Indiana State Police, the FBI, and the Carroll County Sheriff’s Department have announced a reward for information leading to the arrest of the person or persons responsible for the homicides of Liberty German and Abigail Williams. The amount of the reward may be up to $216,165 depending upon the value of the information provided.
